(Signature of Local Union President)

Adopted at the USPA's first Biennial Conference held September 17, 1966 and amended at subsequent USPA Biennial Conference. Officially ratified by the USWA International Executive Board on January 6, 1967 in Pittsburgh, PA and amended by subsequent USPA Biennial Conferences.

CODE OF ETHICS

UNITED STEELWORKERS PRESS ASSOCIATION (USPA)

To better serve the members of the United Steelworkers (USW) and to advance the lofty objectives of the labor movement, the United Steelworkers Press Association (USPA) and its member publications and web sites subscribe and abide by the following Code of Ethics:

1. Member publications, websites and social media sites will always serve the best interests of organized labor and uphold the United Steelworkers Constitution and abide by the By-laws of the United Steelworkers Press Association.
2. Member publications will publish in each issue, full identification of the sponsoring organization and its address. Member websites will carry the logo of the sponsoring organization. Disclaimers shall not relieve the sponsor for responsibilities of this and other sections of the Code of Ethics.
3. Member publications, websites and social media sites will support the official policies of the USW. Publications will not be used to ridicule any member or officer of the USW.
4. Member publications, websites and social media sites shall be non-partisan in local union politics and shall abide by the rules of campaign conduct as set out in the Constitution of the International Union.
5. Member publications, websites and social media sites shall be responsive to the interests of the membership and not to the dictates of select groups.
6. Member publications, websites and social media sites shall refuse to accept advertising from persons or firms known to be anti-labor.
7. No member publication, website and social media sites will claim to represent the views of any segment of organized labor other than its sponsors.
8. Member publications, websites and social media will be guided, at all times, by the accepted moral standards of decency, accuracy and fair play in writing, editing and publishing.
9. Violation of this Code of Ethics by a member shall constitute cause for suspension and expulsion under procedures in the By-laws of the United Steelworkers Press Association
